Dear Fellow Indiana Orthopaedic Society Members:

It is my privilege to welcome you to attend our annual meeting to be held once again this year at the beautiful Conrad Hotel in downtown Indianapolis. This is our third trip to the Conrad which has always provided a wonderful venue for our meeting.

This year's meeting promises to be an outstanding educational experience. We are fortunate to have two internationally recognized experts in their fields who have agreed to be our guest speakers. I am pleased to announce that Dr. Richard Ferkel of the Southern California Orthopaedic Institute will serve as our Presidential Speaker. Rick is at the forefront of the care of the ankle particularly in athletes. He is a consultant for a wide range of athletic teams and has been one of the innovators in the development of ankle arthroscopy particularly with regard to the care of Osteochondritis Dissecans of the talus.

Dr. Richard Ferkel

I have asked one of our own, Dr. William Capello, to serve as our George and Peggy Rapp Guest Lecturer. Bill has been at the one the great developers of hip arthroplasty throughout his career. Having had the honor of training under Dr. Capello, I know that he will provide us with his thoughtful insights into his field.

Dr. William Capello

Dr. Mike Thieken, our program chairman, had been working tirelessly on developing the program for our meeting. He has planned an exciting array of symposiums. This meeting will also see the return of breakout sessions which will allow for more intimate discussion of a variety of topics in a smaller setting.

Please plan to arrive on Thursday in time to attend the welcoming reception to be held at the Quarterback Club in Lucas Oil stadium. This suite, located at the top of the stadium, affords a spectacular view of the stadium as well as ample space for socializing with new and old friends.

Mark your calendars now and return those registration forms—or register online. I look forward to seeing you April 19 in Indianapolis.

Sincerely,

Daniel Lehman, M.D., President
Indiana Orthopaedic Society
